Quests are fun, self-guided, clue-directed educational hunts that get people outside exploring the natural and historical “treasures” of Oregon’s coastal communities. All that is needed to participate in this low-tech activity is a Quest Book and a pencil. To play, choose one of the 28 Quests in the book, and follow the directions to find and collect the hidden letter clues. At the end of the walk, your collected letter clues will tell you where you find the hidden Quest Box. Sign the quest log, stamp the back of your book, and then put the box back in its hiding spot for the next person to find. Quests are made by identifiable members of the community with permission and cooperation from landowners. They are located on publicly-accessible lands, including city, state and federal parks, school grounds, urban areas, historic cemeteries, and more. Quests are suitable for people of all ages and interests, and most take about 45 minutes to complete. Since 2007, more than 12,000 entries have been made in the log books of hidden Oregon Coast Quest boxes!
